Wisdom of the Saints

"The fast of Lent has no advantage to us unless it brings about our spiritual renewal. It is necessary while fasting to change our whole life and practice virtue. Turning away from all wickedness means keeping our tongue in check, restraining our anger, avoiding all gossip, lying and swearing. To abstain from these things - herein lies the true value of the fast." - St. John Chrysostom

SAINTS WITH SAL

Emil Joseph Kapaun was an American Catholic priest and United States Army captain who served as a chaplain during World War II and the Korean War. During his time in the Korean War, Emil Kapaun would risk his life to provide comfort and support to outnumbered soldiers. Kapaun was taken prisoner by Chinese forces after voluntarily staying behind to help wounded soldiers. As a prisoner of war, Kapaun held an Easter Mass for the fellow prisoners on Sunday, March 25, 1951. Kapaun died in a prison "hospital" due to malnutrition. On his way to the death house, Kapaun told fellow soldiers, "Don't worry about me, I'm going where I always wanted to go, and when I get there, I'll say a prayer for all of you." Emil Kapaun was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor. Every chaplain who has won the Congressional Medal of Honor since the Civil War has been a Catholic priest. Kapaun is now on the Venerable stage in his path to Sainthood. For my painting of Kapaun I drew him smiling and holding his pipe with the Medal of Honor behind him.

THE PASTOR'S CORNER

Jesus says in the Gospel of John after He is nailed to the cross, "I thirst." This is the shortest verse in all of Sacred Scripture, but it speaks volumes!

My friends, in our reflection on the Power of the Cross thus far we looked at the 5 pillars: Prayer, Fasting, Almsgiving, Listening, and Togetherness; the uncomfotability of the Cross; and the glory the cross leads us away from the scandal that it may portray and brings us towards the Resurrection. And now our reflection takes us to the cross itself, spiritually speaking. Over the course of His Passion Jesus mentions 7 different words/phrases that He uses, and one of them is "I Thirst." During this scene, Jesus is hanging on the cross thirsty for something to drink. The soldiers took a sponge and soaked it in wine mixed with gall and gave it to him to drink. That's all. If this is all that humanity could do for Christ in His own agony, giving Him something sour and not even moisturizing to the tongue, compared to everything He has given humanity, then we need a HUGE reality check.

In our First Reading, the people 'grumbled' to Moses about not having anything to drink, and the effect is that Moses cried out to the Lord in agony. As Pope Leo mentioned in his address for Lent 2026: God listened to the cries of His people. And that is exactly what He did. He gave them water to drink. God in his unlimited generosity gave the people what they wanted, and in turn what did they do...they complained more- food, drink, wandering in the desert for so long, being bitten by serpents, etc...They never once thanked God for anything He did; all they wanted was something from God.

However, in our Gospel, we read of a different account. The Samaritan woman who goes to the well to draw water for herself, and then Jesus comes to her to "get a drink". At first, she protests, until Jesus begins to reveal to her both her physical and spiritual wounds. And all this began when Jesus asked for a drink. Jesus is asking for the reciprocated generosity of humanity. Although this is a moment of 'healing' for the Samaritan woman, it's the generosity of the 'drink' that needs to become the focus. The woman goes to the well because she is thirsty for water. Jesus goes because He is 'thirsty' to replenish her soul. Although it never says the woman drew water to replenish her physical self nor for Jesus, but Jesus replenished her soul by providing new life.

All God wants is to be generous. God wants to give everything He has, and the best instrument of generosity is the Cross. And when God asked, while on the Cross for humanity to be a 'bit' generous to Him, He received nothing more than the remnants of our goodness, what was left of it anyway. The Cross reminds us that we need not to be ungracious, but to be full of gratitude for everything God gives us. We do not want to be the people who are ungrateful like that in our First Reading, but to be wielders of the Cross so we can imitate God's goodness to us, and practice the spirit of gratitude in giving what we can back to Him.

-Fr. Matt

Sister Dolores Liptak, a member of the Sisters of Mercy, historian and first archivist for the Archdiocese of Hartford, reads an excerpt from one of her books.

ARCHDIOCESAN ARCHIVES MARKS 50 YEARS OF PRESERVING CATHOLIC HISTORY

- Story by Shelley Wolf

In 1973, Sister Dolores Liptak, a Sister of Mercy, completed her studies for a doctoral degree in American history at the University of Connecticut. But she still needed to write her dissertation. A professor suggested she research Catholic immigrants in Connecticut, beginning in the 1880s.

Her research led her to the Catholic Transcript and then to the Archdiocese of Hartford's archives in the Chancery.

"What I found was two dozen boxes on the floor near a large vault, where they kept the baptismal records," she recalls. While the baptismal records were safely stored in cabinets, she says, "the historical records had zero organization."

In order to do her research, Sister Dolores needed to dig through those boxes of correspondence. Also, around that time, the Catholic Church was getting serious about capturing its history.

"In the 1970s, the Vatican issued a document asking every diocese in the world to make sure their archives were organized and available to all serious researchers," Sister Dolores says. The United States bicentennial was also looming.

So, Sister Dolores, Vivian Stephenson, then editor of the Catholic Transcript, and Mary Caffrey, an English teacher, proposed to then-Archbishop John J. Whealon the creation of what is now the Office of the Archdiocesan Archives.

This year, the Archives, which is located on Farmington Avenue in Hartford, is celebrating its 50th anniversary (1976-2026). Sister Dolores, now 94, is its first archivist.

Today, the Archives functions as a private records facility. It contains the official governing and business records of the archdiocese. It also contains ancillary records, objects, artwork and other materials of historical significance, which reflect the mission and ministry of Catholics as a whole.

The Archives supports three categories of users: the archbishop; Catholic parishes, schools, clergy and archdiocesan administrative offices; and qualified researchers doing approved scholarly research.

It is private and not open to the general public. However, over the years, the diligent collection and maintenance of records by a series of archivists (ranging from religious sisters to professional archivists) has quietly captured the history of bishops, clergy and Connecticut's Catholic people.

These records have proven invaluable to book authors and to clergy assigned to special projects.

For instance, during her years as an official archivist (1976-1985), Sister Dolores assisted author Christopher Kauffman in finding a document about Blessed

Michael McGivney for his book Faith and Fraternalism: The History of the Knights of Columbus.

At the request of Archbishop Whealon, Sister Dolores used the Archives herself to research and author the book Hartford's Catholic Legacy: Leadership, which chronicled the bishops and how the Church evolved with the influx of European Catholic immigrants.

One gem in the Archives she still recalls is a touching letter written in 1890 by Michael Simko, requesting the state's first Slovak Roman Catholic parish be created in Bridgeport so 1,200 people could practice their "beloved religion" and "so our souls might not be condemned."

In recent years, clergy have consulted the Archives in preparation for the Jubilee Year of Mercy and for the Archdiocese of Hartford's 175th Anniversary. The Archives also houses a time capsule filled with parish memorabilia to be opened in 2093, the Archdiocese's 200th Anniversary.

Today, Archivist Bridgette Woodall and Assistant Archivist Lindsey Restelli are carrying on the work of cataloguing archdiocesan records and preserving history. They also process 200-plus research requests from clergy and archdiocesan employees annually. Note: For sacramental records, contact your local parish.
